

Problem Statement

USC's major maps are hard to navigate and do not allow students to clearly see the multiple paths they could follow to achieve graduation.

Details

Major maps at USC are difficult to navigate because they are organized as a list. This really is not convenient for students who might stray from the set major maps. For example: A student who must take pre-calculus will not fit the major map provided by USC; same goes for students who might have taken AP classes during high school.
